Everyone in a community can make a difference in the lives of children and youth. Even if you don't think you can tackle tough problems such as violence, alcohol and other drug use, or school problems, you can make a difference by being a caring, responsible friend for young people. Here are some ideas:

Notice them. Acknowledge them. Listen to them. Play with them. Read aloud together. Giggle together. Be nice. Set boundaries that keep them safe. Be honest. Listen to their stories. Hug them. Play outside together. Surprise them. Stay with them when they're afraid. Delight in their discoveries. Share their excitement. Laugh at their jokes. Be relaxed. Answer their questions. Tell them how terrific they are. Create a tradition with them and keep it. Find a common interest. Hold hands during a walk. Apologize when you've done something wrong. Keep the promises you make. Thank them. Point out what you like about them. Catch them doing something right. Encourage win-win solutions. Give them your undivided attention. Ask for their opinion. Have fun together. Be curious with them. Let them solve most of their own problems. Meet their friends. Praise more; criticize less. Be consistent. Enjoy your time together. Marvel at what they can do. Tell them how proud you are of them. Unwind together. Be happy. Believe in them. Be flexible. Let them make mistakes. Respect them. Join in their adventures. Be silly together. Hang out together. Make time. Inspire their creativity. Accept them as they are. Become their advocate. Appreciate their personality. Trust them. Share a secret. Encourage them to help others. Believe what they say. Daydream with them. Make decisions together. Encourage them to think big. Go places together. Be sincere. Introduce them to new experiences. Love them, no matter what. -by Search Institute, Minneapolis, Minnesota
